TIMELY HINTS FOR FARMERS

Permanent Pasture Lots.

It is common practice on many farms to keep a few acres seeded down in permanent blue grass pasture. These permanent pasture lots are almost indispensable as a sort of "nursing ground" for overdone horses and other run down farm animals about the place that require a bit of "pulling together." Seldom, if ever, is any thought taken of their upkeep. Unless plant food is returned in a greater amount than is done by the animals pasturing on them, pastures will slowly starve to death, and deterioration is the result. Many fields seem never to flag in their productive powers, but we have noticed a greater number that are each year falling short in their herbage production. It takes time to seed a good stand of grass and often, too, other factors enter in to make renewing more profitable than reseeding. A good top dressing of well rotted manure, well harrowed in before the ground freezes, will do wonders to increase next year's resources. The application to be most effective should be thin and the harrowing done when the soil is moist.

Beware the Gentle Bull.

A bull, no matter how gentle, should at all times be handled with the idea in the mind that he may at any time get mad and hurt some one. The gentle bull, like the unloaded gun, is the animal which usually does the damage. It is well to regard the bull as just what he is—treacherous and unreliable. If you do not you will some time be caught off your guard and your life insurance may have matured immediately. The bull should be handled gently, but firmly. Never give him reason to believe that he is boss. Handle him with the idea that in a moment's notice you will be able to assert your boss-ship. — Kansas Farmer.

Feeding Lambs in Winter.

Those who have lambs to feed in winter should have some regular system of doing so, as they require more care and attention at this season of the year than any other. They should never be fed with the rest of the flock, but always in a separate place. The grain should consist of oats, bran and oilmeal. Cracked corn or navy beans may replace the oilmeal. A ration which has given great satisfaction comprises a mixture of oats, bran and oilmeal in equal parts by weight.

WINTER CARE OF BREEDING EWES.

Protection From Snow and Winds of Vital Importance.

The protection of breeding ewes from falling snow is important. Especially is it important when it falls in the form of rain. Winter rains and also sleet are always cold. If sheep of the open woolled breed are long exposed to these they may do them great harm. The close woolled breeds, as the Merinos, says Thomas Shaw, will be harmed much less, as the water cannot readily enter the wool which they carry. The shelter provided up to the lambing season may be of the simplest kind, if it will protect from storms and wind.

The aim should be to give breeding ewes large liberty in winter, if the ground is bare or even partially, for it will do them good to give them large liberty. They will make excursions to the fields in search of grass, and the exercise will do them much good. They should be allowed to lie in a well bedded yard at night, in the shed or house adjoining, as they prefer.

The other necessary attentions include regular feeding, supply of salt at all times accessible, and an ample supply of pure water and yard apart from those of horses and cattle.

The Fanning Mill.

The farm equipment is not complete without a fanning mill. Make up your mind to buy a good mill and use it in the careful preparation of all seeds which will be planted henceforth on your farm. At every shake the fanning mill will throw out the robber weed and the spindling stalk. Set the sieves to leave only the best grains and kernels for planting. The use of good seed will go a long way toward a good crop.—Kansas Farmer.

Make the Hens Work.

There is no doubt about the busy hen being the paying hen. Neither is there any doubt that the lazy hen gets to be the sick and listless one. Keep the hens scratching all day and you keep them from moping and dwindling away. Have a scratching shed and smother the feed with litter so that the hens must scratch or starve.

Waste of Wood Ashes.

There are still some persons who are ignorant of the value of wood ashes as may be seen by their being thrown out along a run or in the road. This should never be done. They are valuable for all kinds of fruit trees, or in the garden, and either unleached or leached they should never be wasted.

A FIGHT FOR A WIFE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

"I dunno much about romance, as they calls it, but I reckon I shaved it mighty close when I got my wife. One day, when I was a young feller of twenty-two, I seen a gal over on t'other side of the mountings that jest filled the bill. I made up to her and was talkin' 'bout b'ars and wildcats and sich when her mother steps in and sez: "Stranger, mebbe yo' are wantin' to take my gal away fur a wife?"

"I'm reckonin' to consider that I would," I replies.

"Then I'll blow the horn fur her pop to cum enter the woods and tell yo' what is what?"

"She blowed and blowed, and bimeby the old man appeared. He was a powerful man, and he didn't look good natured. His name was Babbit, and arter lookin' me over he sez:

"Stranger, it's got to be a mighty good man who takes my darter Sue away fur his wife. How fur kin anybody b'ar yo' holler?"

"Two miles, if the wind is right," sez I.

"And about yo' jumpin'?"

"It's jus to eight feet when I don't slip."

"Hev yo' ever dun any climbin'?"

"I hev. I've climbed the tallest tree in sight of these yere Cumberland mountings."

"And the number of b'ars and wildcats what yo've slain?" he goes on, seemin' to want to pick a furse with me.

"They'd purty nigh fill yo'r cabin," sez I, feelin' a little riled at the way he spoke.

"Well," sez he, arter stoppin' to consider a bit, "nobody kin take that gal away jest becase he kin hoot or climb or kill varmints. He's got to pay me on my back in a f'r fout. I'll gin you a week to think it over. If yo' want the gal yo' must cum back and tackle me, and I'm tellin' yo' I'm a bad critter as long as I've got one foot on the airth."

"I went away feelin' sort o' cast down, but the mo' I thought of it the mo' I wanted the gal Sue fur my wife. That night I made up my mind that I'd try fur her, and next day I went back to the cabin. Her pop was thar and waikin' around and feelin' powerful feart."

"Thar was a c'lar space in the front of his cabin," said the old man, "and when the gal and her mother had cum outdoors we threw off our coats and begun bizness. I was accounted a powerful hand on a wrassle, but that man was also a powerful critter, and I reckoned I'd hev to hev help from the Lawd to gain the victory. It was 10 o'clock in the mawnin' when we begun, and the clock was jest strikin' 1 when I flopped him on his back. That spot on the ground looked as if fo'y hawks had bin rootin' it up fur a week, and he was so beat out he could hardly speak. Mo' than twenty times in them three hours that critter had me almost dun fur, but I'd send up a sort of prayer and git a new hold, and at last I fetched him. When he was able to talk he riz up and took my hand and sez:

"Stranger, it was a far wrassle, and I've been flopped. I wouldn't 'a believed yo' could hev dun it, but yo' did, and I'm sayin' yo' ar' a porty good man. Howsumever, it ain't over yit. Yo've got to lick me to git Sue, and I know yo' kin never do it. We'll take three days to rest up, and then yo' kin cum back and tackle me."

"And did you go?" I asked as the old man made a long pause.

"Fur suah," he replied. "I was mighty sore and lame, but I knowed he would be as bad off. Besides, that gal Sue had hooted fur me when I flopped her pop, and I knowed by that she was with me and would hope fur me to come out on top. In three days I went back to hev it out. The critter was a-lookin' fur me and glad to see me."

"How's it to be?" sez I.

"A f'r fout," sez he, "no throwin' rocks nor hittin' with clubs. Whoop! Cock-a-doodle-do!"

"Waah, we went at it. Sue and her maw was out thar as befo', and the gal gin me a smile as I went in. It was a rough and tumble fout. I jest knowed I'd got to do my level best or go under, and I lost no chances. That fout lasted mighty nigh two hours, and two or three times I was almost on the pint of lettin' go. Bimeby, howsumever, I seen that Babbit was gettin' tired out, and the gal clapped her hands and sicked me on. Ten minits arter that I had him whopped. Thar wasn't no mistake about it, becase he riz up and sez to me:

"Zeb White, I'm a whopped man, and that gal is yo's. I didn't believe thar was a critter on these mountings as could make me hoot, but yo' dun it. And now when do yo' want the gal?"

"Right now, I reckon," sez I.

"Ain't it purty sudden?"

"Not so very, bein' as she's ready to go."

"Then, maw, bring out the broom stick and let 'em jump over it, and if they want to be married by a preacher they kin do it sum other time."

"And you took the girl home?" I asked.

"Sartinly," replied Zeb. "Yes, sah, took her right home with me, with her feather bed on my back, and she's out thar in the kitchen makin' mince pies this minit. As I was sayin', these yere marriages of today don't amount to shucks. When yo' luv a gal and hev to lick her ole pop to git her then yo' know she's wuth the critter."

NO MONEY TRUST, SAYS MORGAN

Declares It Impossible, With Bang of His Fist.

OPPOSES ONE-MAN CONTROL

Financier Like a "Little Competition," But Likes "Combination" Better.

Washington, Dec. 20.—J. Pierpont Morgan spent nearly five hours before the house "money trust" investigating committee, giving his views on concentration of credits, interlocking directorates, clearing houses, combinations, competition and kindred subjects. After excusing Mr. Morgan the committee took a recess until Jan. 6.

The burden of his testimony was that there could be no "money trust," that a monopoly of money was impossible, and that while he did not believe in one-man control of industries, he preferred combination to competition for the unity of action it made possible in management.

"There could be no money trust. All the banks and all the money in Christendom could not control money. The question of control is personal as to money and credits," was the financier's flat declaration on that phase of his examination. The declaration was emphasized with a bang of his fist on the arm of his chair.

The financier was led up to his answer by the questioning of Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, who asked Mr. Morgan whether he "did not feel his vast power."

Mr. Morgan replied that he did not admit he had vast power and did not feel it.

Then, when the lawyer and the witness got into a discussion of competition and combination, Mr. Morgan said:

"I'd rather have combination than competition. I like a little competition, but I like combination better. Control is the important thing; without it you can't do a thing, but no one man could monopolize money. One man might get control of railroads or merchandise, but never money and credit."

The witness testified that he had approved the prices at which the subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation were taken into the big corporation. Mr. Untermyer asked whether he had not named the board of directors of the Steel Corporation.

At first Mr. Morgan said he "approved" the list of steel directors, but when pressed by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee and moving spirit in the probe, as to whether he did "name" the entire board, the distinguished witness replied that, if "approving" the list was "naming" the directors he was "willing to accept the responsibility."

Mr. Morgan agreed to supply the committee with statements of various phases of his great business enterprises and affairs, including one showing the amounts of securities his firm marketed annually. He declared this was greatly over-estimated and thought it was less than $1,000,000, 000.

The dominant financier of the country also was quizzed by Mr. Untermyer about the deposits with his firm, which he estimated at about $100,000, 000 and on agreements, copies of which he submitted to the committee, making his firm the sole fiscal agent for the New York Central and the New Haven railroad systems. Other similar agreements, he said, were only verbal.

Mr. Morgan denied that he believed interlocking directorates, where two or three men held directorships in several banks, trust companies or corporations, could bring about control and a unity of action. He declared that without a majority on the boards, such men could not dictate affairs or control the corporations.

The Northern Pacific and Southern railway voting trusts were gone into. Mr. Morgan did not think that it was objectionable that the directors of the Southern, appointed by him as a voting trustee, should designate his firm as the fiscal agent for the railroad.

Mr. Morgan answered all questions quite cheerfully. Once his voice became very husky and he asked his daughter, Mrs. Herbert L. Sattelle, for a throat tablet, but refused a glass of water proffered by Mr. Untermyer and declared he was not fatigued. Several times he caused a general laugh, in which he joined, especially when he was asked whether he was not a large stockholder in the First National Bank of New York, and replied: "No, only about a million dollars' worth."

Again the auditors in the crowded hearing room were highly amused when the financier announced that he did not "run" his firm. He coupled this with the declaration that he did not favor one-man control of great enterprises of any kind, even railroads.

Would Pension Mothers.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 20.—Mayor John V. Kosek announced that he would send a special message to council asking for an appropriation to establish a pension fund for mothers and aged indigent couple in this city. Mayor Kosek says that if the plan proves a success he will attempt to have it extended throughout Pennsylvania.

WILSON TO PUT END TO HANDSHAKING

Will See Only Those Persons Having Business.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 20.—The days of public receptions in the big east room of the White House are numbered.

In the next administration people will not be received at the executive mansion merely for the purpose of shaking hands or gazing in curiosity at the president of the United States.

President-elect Wilson declared that he saw no use in spending time just to receive people who had no public business to transact at the White House.

Outside of the needless physical strain of receiving hundreds of people when the president is endeavoring to use his energies for more important pursuits, Wilson said he did not believe in incessant receptions to tourists and the numerous societies that come annually to Washington.

He also indicated that he would not attend many of the banquets that national societies of various kinds hold in Washington, and to which the president is regularly invited.

The president-elect said that his open-door policy would be preserved at the White House so far as it was physically possible, and that he intended to have the doors of the executive offices thrown wide open so that the president would be accessible at all times, but only to those "who have business to transact."

ARCHBALD CASE DELAYED

Impeachment Trial Suspended Until After Holidays.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The impeachment trial of Judge Robert M. Archbald, of the United States commerce court, was suspended in the senate until after the holidays.

The defense has about ten more witnesses and will conclude its case by putting the respondent himself on the witness stand.

There was a controversy between Judge Archbald's attorney and the managers on the part of the house as to which side was consuming most of the time.

It arose when A. S. Worthington, attorney for the respondent, suggested that the case of Judge Archbald would have been closed, except his own testimony, but for the time that had been consumed by the house managers in cross-examination. Judge Clayton, of the house managers, resented this and there was a sharp colloquy.

They forced their way into Boehler's stronghold in a downtown rooming house after the man had been partially overcome by fumes of formaldehyde forced into the room through holes cut into the wall and flooring.

Find Aviator's Body in Sea.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 20.—The body of Chester Lawrence, newspaper man and companion of Horace K. Key, was found Saturday in the hydroplane flight which brought death to both men, was recovered from the sea.

TAFT OFF FOR PANAMA

The President Will Spend Three Days at Big Ditch.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The President and Mrs. Taft and their invited guests left Washington for Key West, Fla., on the first leg of a flying trip to Panama.

The president and his friends will eat their Christmas turkey in the tropics, spend three days inspecting the greatest engineering feat in the world, and Mr. Taft will be back in Washington in time to shake hands with a few thousand persons at his last New Year's reception.

The presidential party will be away from Washington twelve days. Four will be spent on trains, five at sea and three in Panama. It will be the president's fifth visit to the zone and his first to Florida.

It will not be merely a pleasure trip for the president. He has determined to make Colonel George W. Goethals, builder of the canal, governor of the zone under the forthcoming civil administration.

RUNAWAY BACK WITH BRIDE AND $10,000

Lad Whipped For Not Attending School Ran Away.

Northumberland, Pa., Dec. 20.—Ten years ago Paul E. Derk, of this place was whipped by his father for not attending school.

He ran away and had not been heard from until Wednesday, when he appeared. He had with him a bride and a certified check for $10,000, half of which he presented to his father.

Derk, who was seventeen years old when he left, says he did not like school and rode freight trains to Pittsburgh. He was penniless and managed to eat by begging from house to house.

In Pittsburgh he got work, but later drifted to the west, where he drew a quarter section of government ground at Rosebuck, Mont. He worked this and successfully started a small stock ranch, which prospered. On Dec. 1 he sold out for $10,000.

TAFT PARDONS VANSCHAICK

General Slocum's Commander Freed by President.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The president granted a pardon to Captain William H. Van Schaick, who commanded the steamboat General Slocum, which was burned in 1904 in the East river off New York city, resulting in the loss of 1030 lives, mostly women and children.

The pardon becomes effective on Christmas day. Captain Van Schaick has been out of prison on parole for some time.

Captain Van Schaick in 1906 was convicted and sentenced to ten years imprisonment for criminal negligence in failure to have sufficient life saving and fire equipment aboard his vessel. He had served five years when paroled last February.

Two hundred and fifty thousand persons signed the petition to President Taft asking his pardon. Two previous attempts to secure pardon for him failed.

Only Three Suffragettes on Hike.

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Three survivors of the suffragette army arrived here in the midst of darkness and a rip snorting snow storm. They had walked twenty-four miles during the day over roads almost impassable on account of mud. This record-breaking performance had exhausted all of them. General Jones, who barely recovered from badly blistered heels, nearly collapsed in the public square and had to be carried into the hotel, where she revived under the ministrations of Surgeon General Dock.

Fire Destroys Distillery.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 20.—The West Nettlecock distillery was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of about $75,000. The fire was the result of a tank of whisky exploding. Two workmen were injured fighting the flames.

Michigan Women Lose by 760.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 20.—According to the final returns as canvassed by the state board of canvassers, the equal suffrage amendment was lost in Michigan by a majority of 760.

CAUSE OF IMPURE BLOOD

Druggist Tells of Best Remedy.

Pure healthy blood is a most essential factor to good health.

Poor thin, devitalized blood may be caused by a weakness of the digestive organs, an accumulation of waste matter in the system, an inactive liver or lack of exercise.

Whatever the cause the best remedy we know is our delicious cod liver and rion tonic, Vinol. It will purify and enrich the blood, tone up the digestive organs, give you a hearty appetite and create strength.

A case has just come to our attention from Schenectady, N. Y., Mrs. Hattie Hall says: "I was forcibly reminded that my system was run down and my blood in bad condition by an abscess forming in my side which required treatment for several weeks. Under the regular use of Vinol to purify and enrich my blood and build up my strength this was soon healed, and my general health was much improved."

If you have the slightest indication of poor blood take Vinol. If it fails to help you we will give back your money. People's Drug Store, Baltimore street, Gettysburg, Pa.

Ireland's Coast Cliffs.
The finest cliff scenery in the United Kingdom is on the coast of the county of Donegal, at the northwest of Ireland, facing the Atlantic, where the variety and grandeur of the cliffs are most thrilling and impressive. Slieve League, south of Glen Columbkille, is a superb introduction to Donegal's coast splendors. In less than half a mile from the sea the mountain rears its height of nearly 2,000 feet. In the island of Achill, off the west coast of Ireland, the cliffs of Croghan, at Achill Head, rise sheer from the water's edge to the dizzy height of 3,000 feet.—London Standard.

Hard to Please.
"Why did she divorce her first husband?"
"He couldn't keep his money."
"And why is she suing her present husband for divorce?"
"He's such a tightwad."—Houston Post.
